

Hand battery

Can you make electricity flow?

Hold one metal bar from each side.

What happens on the meter?

Try different combinations of metals.

Different combinations of metals give different readings on the meter. When you hold two different metals in your hands, you make a battery. Electrons flow from one metal to the other. Your body, or more precisely, the moisture on your skin, is the battery's electrolyte.